DIGITAL EMPOWERMENT :
The Need of the Twenty-First Century

Deb Dulal Halder
Prof Pratima Rani Sardar

Digital literacy and empowerment are the need of the hour, as without them, the digital divide will increase, leading to more inequalities in society. Therefore, it is essential to acquaint students from all walks of life with emerging technologies and how they can better their lives with Digital literacy. The book Digital Empowerment : The Need of the Twenty-First Century is designed to be inclusive, catering to students from diverse backgrounds. It will acquaint them with different facets of digital technology and the precautions to secure themselves in the digital world. The book is structured following the NEP-based Skill Enhancement Course "Digital Empowerment" of the University of Calcutta.

Deb Dulal Halder teaches English at Kirori Mal College, University of Delhi. He has authored over 20 academic books and 50 self-instructional materials/eContent for universities across India and published research papers in various national and international journals.

Prof (Dr) Pratima Rani Sardar teaches Ecology and Environmental Management at Shivaji College, University of Delhi. She has authored many books and published research papers in many reputed International and National journals. She is the Founder Director of the Centre for Environment and Disaster Management.
